DEDICATION

As time rolls on, a person often finds it hard to remember the past. Even a past which has greatly influenced a future eventually becomes hard to reminisce.

A yearbook is one of the few things that enable us to momentarily turn back the hands of time. In recognition of this, we would like to dedicate this volume of the Quill to the yearbook staffs of the past 75 years.

For nearly a century, East High students have worked to produce yearbooks that might better enable us to recollect that great East High pride and that everlasting Scarlet Fever.

Smoke pours from the casino area of the MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas, Nevada, as fire races through the hotel's lower levels. The blaze proved to be one of the year's outstanding fatalities.

Ash, smoke and millions of tons of Mount St. Helens are hurled skyward as the volcano erupts with atomic-bomb force. The volcano, in northern Washington state, exploded numerous times throughout the year.

The nation overall . . .

Year of hope, freedom, death, destruction

Many new hopes were established in 1981. These hopes were built through the election of a new President and with the freedom found by refugees and former hostages. Unfortunately, these hopes were shadowed by such devastations as kidnappings, disasters and death.

One of the biggest freedoms established during the year came through the release of 52 American hostages held 444 days in Iran. The hostages were welcomed home in January, but memories lingered of the eight servicemen killed in an aborted attempt to rescue the hostages in April, 1980.

An overwhelming destruction hit the MGM Grand as fire raged through the Las Vegas hotel and casino. Although the blaze never reached above the second floor, smoke killed 83 persons and injured 334.

Former Beatle John Lennon was shot to death outside his New York City apartment in early December, 1980. Lennon's assassin pleaded innocent to the crime on grounds of insanity. Lennon is shown here at a 1972 peace rally.

Many Americans were surprised at the results of the election for this country's fortieth President. Although some predicted that the election would be "too close to call," former California governor Ronald Reagan defeated incumbent Jimmy Carter. The election was later called a landslide.

The volcano, Mount St. Helens, blew its top, producing a blast as powerful as the largest atomic bomb ever tested. The blast resulted in 34 deaths.

Although 1981 proved to be a year of despair for many, there were those who hoped that devastations such as these could only bring our nation closer together rather than drawing it farther apart.

Epidemic strikes . . .

Scarlet Fever launches new school year

Temperatures rose over the summer months. Whether students spent vacation in California or spent the day at Saylorville Beach, those hot days went by swiftly. But then the pre-season football games started appearing on the television set. Back-to-school sales started popping up and before you knew it, the State Fair opened. That could mean only one thing — school was about to start.

With school beginning, you knew that that great sense of pride was starting to build up inside you once more. This enthusiasm could not be held inside. Scarlet Fever was a very contagious disease and was a serious threat to any other high school that it came in contact with.

There were no words to describe this excitement, but there were ways to show it. The most obvious way to show your enthusiasm was to buy a State Champions T-shirt, which was sold by the Student Government. You could also decorate your car for a pre-football game caravan.

Parents and alumni got into the act by joing the PTSA and Booster Club and selling refreshments at games, as well as conducting other fund-raising activities. Of course, the Cheerleaders were always spreading as much of their Scarlet Fever as they could.

Scarlet Fever had no known vaccine. Once you had caught it, it would never let you go.

The Medicine Man is perplexed as he tries to find a cure for the "Scarlet Fever" that hit the school. He's got a tough job, as you can see by the faces of the stricken students.

PTSA (Parent-Teacher-Student Association) boosters show their support by running the coat check.

Scarlets spread the epidemic throughout the East Side during Homecoming Week by decorating cars for the caravan.

SCARLET POWERED

Piper crowned 1980-81 Queen of Homecoming

Homecoming! This word evoked different emotions from each member of the student body, as everyone "did their thing" to prepare for this special event.

Homecoming Week was the first of the festivities. Each day of this week was designated for a specific activity.

The traditional assembly was held on Friday to honor the football players and introduce the Homecoming Court and the candidates for Homecoming Queen.

Suspense was almost tangible as the Student Government president, senior Kalina Reed, tore open a white envelope and proclaimed senior Brenda Piper as the 1980-81 Homecoming Queen.

Brenda was crowned by the 1979-80 Queen, LuAnn Christiansen.

The Queen's court included seniors Melinda White and escort Alan Gustafson; seniors Pam Eyerly and escort Rick Schultz; Queen Brenda Piper and escort, graduate Kevin Carter; juniors Traci Collins and escort Don Shultice; sophomores Stephanie Blanos and escort Erik Luthens; freshmen Teresa Brown and escort Allan Shepard.

Enlivening the assembly by performing entertaining routines were the Cheerleaders, Colorguard and Steppers.

Junior Robin Brady also provided entertainment by singing a song for the Queen's last walk.

The football game against North was held that night. The Scarlet coasted to a 50-0 victory.

Topping off the festivities was the Homecoming Dance, which was held in the cafeteria.

"We've Got Tonight" was the selected theme.

Providing the musical entertainment was the band "Apostrophe."

A popular reaction to the dance as expressed by senior Challee Larpenter follows: "I liked the dance, and especially the band."

HOMECOMING WEEK

Special activities highlight '80 Homecoming

Homecoming Week ranks as one of the most exciting events of the school year. It is a time when everyone in the school has a chance to show his spirit by participating in the many activities. This year was no exception.

The week was filled with many of the traditional activities such as Hat Day, Favorite T-Shirt Day, Dress-up Day and Color Day. Grub Day was added as a new version of the old Farmers' Day.

Each day of the week was set aside to honor a certain group of people within the school. Wednesday, September 24, was Student Appreciation Day. This was the day that the students were honored, and school did not begin until 9 a.m.

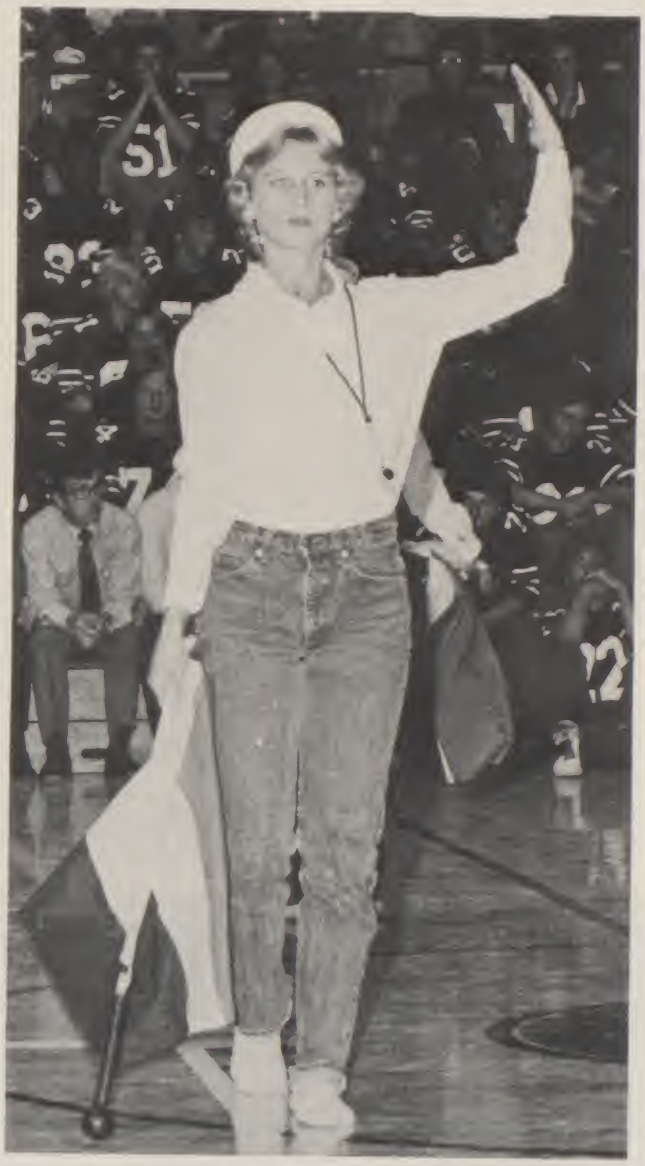
Another activity during the week was a cake-decorating contest sponsored by Student Government. The winning cake was made by seniors Mark Rydell and Valerie Voss; second place went to seniors Kim Stark and Shelly Hansen. The third-place cake was made by junior Teg Welsher.

The Scarlet spirit was kept alive with a Homecoming victory over North 50-0 at the football game Friday.

The week came to a fantastic close with the traditional Homecoming Dance. The theme was "We've Got Tonight," and the music was furnished by the band "Apostrophe."

Junior Richard Smith conceals himself as he awaits the enemy on Hat Day, one of the many Homecoming Week activities.

Seniors Jeanne Minor and Valerie Voss keep up the tradition of Dress-up Day with skirts and tuxes.



Practice pays off for senior Dena Grove as she performs in the Homecoming assembly.

SPREE '81

Western fad changes Spree

The annual Spinsters' Spree was held Saturday, March 7. The Spree had a western twist to it. The theme was "Saturday Night Hoe-down." Some people came dressed in their western jeans and cowboy hats in order to fit the theme. Others stuck to tradition with semi-formal dresses and suits.

Spree provided something for everyone to do. Many people took advantage of the chance to get even with someone by sending them to the jail. Others were caught up in the romance of the evening and were married at the marriage booth provided.

For those who didn't want to send anyone to jail, and felt that they weren't quite ready for marriage, disc jockey J. Michael McCoy provided the music for dancing.

Instead of buying a boutonniere for her date, each girl was supposed to make one to match the theme. The boutonnieres were judged at the dance on the basis of who had used the most creativity, and how well the theme was incorporated into the boutonniere. Julie Nelson won the contest with the boutonniere that she designed for her date, Greg Hiler.

Seniors Jack Baker and Denise Waychoff were chosen as Spree King and Queen. Their court included junior representatives Kirk Larson and Traci Collins; sophomore representatives Todd Anderson and Maria Polich; and freshman represenatives Rusty Stuart and Brenda Johnson.

Senior Joe Morrill and junior Tami Painter are dressed and ready for the hoe-down.

The Shotgun Wedding proved to be a popular booth at the Spinsters' Spree. Here no shotgun was needed to persuade juniors Doug Layton and Marla Ford to participate in the mock ceremony. This type of event has become a traditional part of the annual dance.

The Spree Queen and King, seniors Denise Waychoff and Jack Baker, share a moment together.

FASHIONS

Bill Blass, Anne Klein, John Kloss, Jordache, Halston . . . If you were a fashion-conscious student, these names probably rang a cash-register bell in your head. But, regardless of their exhorbitant prices, designer clothes with names like these were worn by many students.

Other popular styles included the plaid-blazer combination with a pair of argyle socks and penny loafer shoes for the girls. Izod sweaters worn over Oxford shirts constituted the look of the guys. This particular style was called the "preppy" look.

Monogram sweaters, the blazer-jean combination, sweater dresses, baggy or narrow-cut jeans and western style clothing were some of the other fashions.

Permed hair was the biggest trend in hair styles, along with the feathered look. French braids were also worn by the girls.

Accessories included hand-painted pins, hair bands and ribbons for the girls. Gold chains were worn by the guys.

Senior Sandi Taylor models a sweater in the Younkers Tea Room. Sandi was also the Teen Board representative for East.

Junior Kim Brown models her $36 pair of Calvin Klein jeans. Many students bought designer jeans such as these, regardless of their exhorbitant prices.

Edward Van Halen, lead guitarist for the rock group Van Halen, cranks out a tune for enthusiastic fans in Des Moines at Vets' Auditorium.

Seniors Todd Adamson and Melinda White buy a pair of tickets to the movie "Any Which Way You Can." Despite the high cost of movie tickets, many students didn't mind spending a few bucks to see a good movie.

"Whew! Friday's finally here!"

This exclamation of relief could be heard echoing throughout the halls after a long week of six-o'clock alarms and late-night studying. Along with this comment came thoughts of how to spend the long-awaited weekend in the most enjoyable way possible.

Popular choices included going to football or basketball games and then going out to eat at a local McDonald's or pizza parlor. Taking a date out to a movie or dancing was another possibility. Students also enjoyed attending rock concerts and performances at the Civic Center or Vets' Auditorium. Some of the groups that performed in Des Moines were Van Halen, Head East, R.E.O. Speedwagon, The Who, Rush, AC/DC, Molly Hatchet and Ted Nugent.

When students were asked what they enjoyed doing on weekends, some of the more quotable answers were "I liked to go to football games and party afterwards." "I usually went to a movie."

12B FORMAL
Through the Eyes of Love

The "12B" winter formal dance—"12" meaning senior and "B" meaning second semester—was held December 27 from 8 to 11 p.m. in the Cloud Room at the Des Moines Municipal Airport.

Sponsored by Mrs. Gwenn Copple, Spanish teacher, and organized by senior Sandi Taylor, the dance was considered to be a "private party" put on by the 47 senior girl hostesses. The only requirements for being a hostess were being a senior and meeting the monetary deadline. Each girl then received two tickets, one for her and her escort, and one to sell to another couple.

Since this was their own party, the girls were required to organize the dance, and they were responsible for printing tickets and programs, as well as providing food and decorations. The traditional wine goblets were presented to the hostesses and their escorts toward the end of the dance; the goblets were embossed with the theme of the dance, "Through the Eyes of Love."

Music was provided by "The Last Shades of Dawn."

After apparently losing their dates, seniors Rick Mendenhall and Jack Baker discuss plans for the evening.

Alumnus David Moore, seniors Kim Stark, Bobette Erickson, Jeff James, Alan Gustafson, Melinda White, Greg Hill (junior), Lisa Stamper, Scott Emery, Shelly Hanson, Allen Bailey and Brenda Rose slow dance.

Supplying music for the dance is "The Last Shades of Dawn." This group has played at many of East's dances.

fall play As You See It

Caught in the middle of an undoubtedly splendid-sounding note are the "Pigateers," one of a large roster of acts in the 1980 fall play.

Dr. Alan Nickelmaine (senior Scott Arnold) "dishes it out" as he brutally attacks Dr. Monica Nickelmaine (senior Michelle Ploskonka) with a spoon in "Extraordinary Hospital," one of the many skits in the fall play.

Senior Brian Tillman and junior Kim Milligan show great expression and enthusiasm while acting in another skit included in the fall play.

"Gunpowder?" "Extraordinary Hospital?" "The Pigateers?" Not your everyday play titles. But then again, the 1980 fall play, "As You See It," was definitely not your ordinary play. With the play including 11 different skits, a cast of 14 students slipped in and out of more costumes than Marshall Dillweed could "shake a stick at." (Dillweed was played by senior Dan Nichols.)

There were many lines to be learned and a great number of quick changes were necessary to put on so many skits in one play. However, evident was no fear, for the great "Pigateers" were here!

Portraying the part of Mr. Rogers, a television character many high school students are familiar with, senior Dan Nichols converses with one of his hippy friends, played by Jim Bertin, senior.

In the skit "Gunpowder," Marshall Dillweed (senior Dan Nichols) "bites the bullet" in this confrontation with Deadeye (senior Brian Tillman).

High, rising prices major subject in 1980-81

Inflation was a major subject of the year 1980-1. Prices rose faster in 1980 than they ever had in our history. There were a number of reasons why we hadn't been able to control inflation. One problem was oil. We were consuming oil products, like gas, faster than they could be produced, making the demand high and the supply low. That caused the price to increase.

This created a domino effect, raising prices of other items that required oil for production. This went on until practically everything had increased in price.

On October 24, 1978, President Carter made the following statement: "Inflation has been a serious problem ever since I became president. We have tried to control it, but we have not been successful. If there is one thing I have learned beyond any doubt, it is that there is no single solution for inflation. We must face a time of national austerity."

From 1978 on we suffered from inflation, but most economists said that the worst was yet to come. Our new President, Ronald Reagan, had some new ideas on how to stop inflation, but at press time we could only hope that the economy would improve.

FUND-RAISERS

Each year there are activities to raise money for different groups and clubs around school. This year was no exception. Students sold everything from candle holders to sausage.

Some items, like candy, were sold by more than one group. In order to keep different clubs from selling the same item at the same time, a schedule was followed by all groups and organizations involved in selling activities.

Busy trying to raise money for National Honor Society is senior Kalina Reed. Her customers, seniors Jim Cline, Diane Eisenlauer and Scott Helverson, buy plenty. Selling candy to students was an easy task, because there were always starving students.

Sophomores Amy Currie, Shari Rose, Kim Reynolds, Linda Estes and Laura Steward have fun at a fund-raising mixer after a basketball game.

GOOD TIMES!

Just what were good times at East High? Supporting basketball, football, baseball and softball games or any type of sport . . . the first day of school seeing new and old friends . . . the last day of school, looking forward to summer fun.

Countless activities throughout the whole year created many of the good times for students to always remember in later years.

For seniors, all good times will always be remembered. Senior Jodi Henderson's explanation of good times was "Being able to be yourself because you're a senior and everyone looks up to you."

Not only supporting sports but taking part in them constituted good times for many athletes. For senior Barry Dyer, "Being a part of the football and baseball teams was very important."

Jody Bell's definition of good times was "getting together for group activities such as basketball games and the senior ski trip. Activities like these are really fun and they bring students closer together."

Senior Jill Jefferson believed that good times was having released time and only three classes a day.

Having good times was very important to many. Everyone had his own way and his own style of creating good times.

Good Times are . . . standing around in the hallways during lunch hour for seniors Bart Baker, Alan Gustafson, Kevin Moore, Doug Hasstedt, Todd Roorda, Brian Wolfkill, Rick Lingren, Mike Lynch, Bob Little.

Good Times are . . . the last day of finals for juniors Kirk Larson, Steve Nisser, Cherie Richardson.

Good Times are . . . cheering for the basketball games for senior Tanya Woods, sophomore Carmenlita Calaway, senior Lujuana Smith.

As many parents and teachers often exclaim, "You're in high school now, so act your age!" Well, a great number of students found that a part of that maturity was the responsibility of a job.

When a student came upon the problem of a lack of spending money, employment was often the solution. Places of employment for these students ranged from Arby's to Zachary's.

One obvious setback to getting a job during the school year was the interference working caused with schoolwork. Many students showed up in class with "heavy eyelids" after working late the night before. Though there were some difficulties, with the wages he or she earned, a student was able to go many places and do a number of things; for example, attending any of the many East High athletic games, eating at restaurants and going skating.

Even though the umemployment rate went sky high and many hours were spent standing in line waiting for a job opening, a great number of East students defied these problems and became employed. So the employment world had to watch out—today's youth were movin' up!

Working school nights and weekends, senior Brenda Rose puts her pen away and goes to work at Richman Gordman.

Being chosen as Kiwanian of the Month is a great honor, but there are other benefits to his honor. Each Kiwanian got a chance to meet key business and civic leaders from Des Moines. The Kiwanians got to meet these leaders while attending luncheons at the Hotel Savery during their months as Kiwanians.

There were no academic or extracurricular guidelines for choosing a Kiwanian, but each student chosen was known to the administration as a person who had the ability to represent East High.

Senior Kiwanians Kalina Reed, Diane Eisenlauer and Paul Boyum take time out of their busy schedules to pose with Principal Norman Miller.

BOOSTER CLUB

During many of the basketball games this past year, Booster Club members set up a table to sell their products.

Taking time out from the game, a Booster Club member gets a cup of coffee in the Hospitality Room. The Hospitality Room was sponsored by the Booster Club.

One of the main contributions to East High from the Booster Club was the $1,300 they raised for the new weight room.

The $1,300 was raised through a raffle where the winner received $300 worth of groceries from Hy Vee.

Other activities sponsored by the Booster Club were the Football Jamboree, Pancake Day, Cavatelli Dinner and AAU Basketball Tournament.

The officers of the Booster Club were Mr. Jim Reynolds (President), Mr. Dick Reese (Vice-President), Mrs. Bev Eyerly (Secretary) and Mr. Bill Walling (Treasurer).

Two old clubs were combined this year under a new name and with new sponsors. Pep "E" Club was the new title for the combination of Pep Club and "E" Club. Mr. Paul Sloan and Mrs. Shirley Blenderman retired as sponsors and their responsibilities were handed over to Mrs. Mary Westover and Mrs. B. Joanne Frank.

Said president Karla Leeper, "We put in many hours of hard work in order to make Pep 'E' Club's activities a success." These activtities included Thanksgiving baskets for retired teachers, caravans to the games, decorations for the library at Christmas, sports banquets and the spring Spinsters Spree.

The enthusiasm of the 101 members was shown during assemblies and at athletic events, where they were given their own special section. There was also an opportunity for earning letters by attending seasonal activities and doing extra projects which promoted spirit at East High.

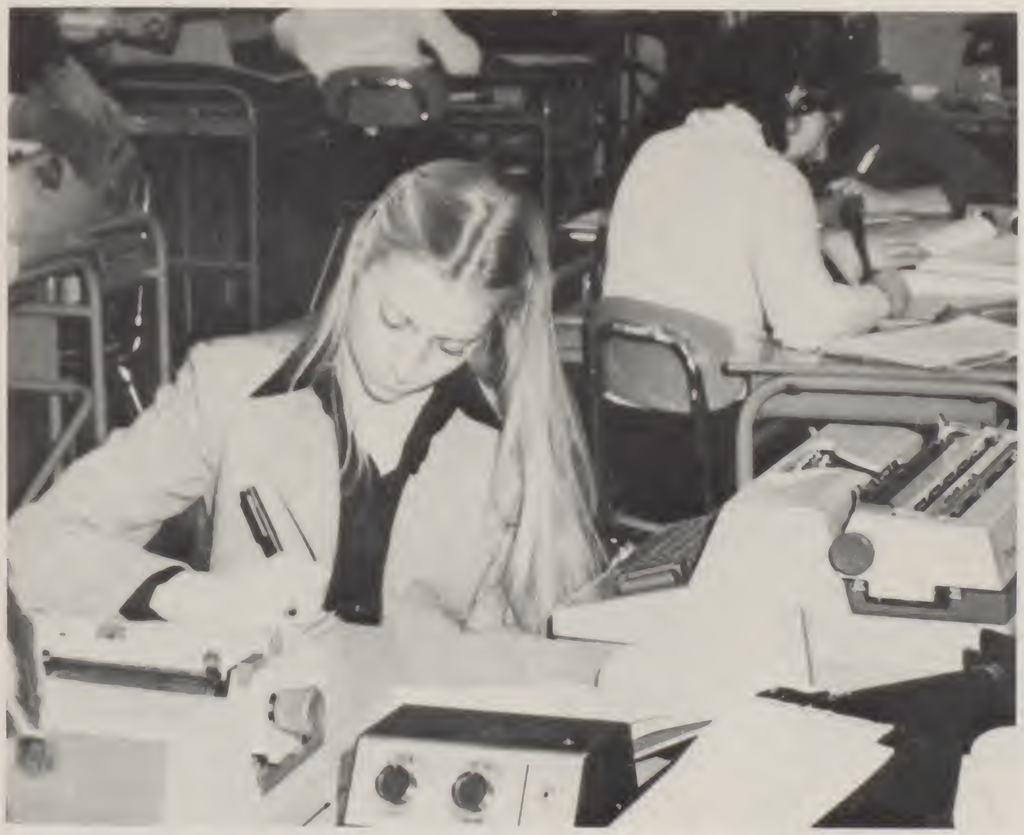
PTSA

Mr. James Tredway, chairperson of the English Department, talks with Mr. Norman Miller, principal, about an article in the PTSA Scarlet Communique, a newsletter produced by four teachers and the printing class, which is under the direction of Mr. Bruce Hines.



Lisa Olauson, senior and student member of PTSA, translates her notes so she can begin typing.

"We assisted with anything and everything that needed to be done." These were the words of Mrs. Mary Lou Olauson, president of the Parent-Teacher-Student Association — PTSA.

Some of the many activities that the PTSA helped with included running the concession stands during sports activities and helping with ID pictures in the fall.

Members of PTSA included a large number of parents and teachers as well as quite a few students. Said Mrs. Olauson, "Many of the other schools around the state were surprised that we had students active in PTSA. There were no requirements to become a member; you just had to show up and participate."

PTSA was part of a larger state and national Parent Teacher Association. Mrs. Olauson was the representative at the Fall State Convention of PTA.

AD CLUB

At the beginning of the year the Ad Club set a goal of selling $7,000 worth of ads. The Ad Club finished the year with over $8,500 worth of ads sold.

The Ad Club was set up much like a business. Each student was, in a sense, employed by the school to sell advertising. For the first year, students received a five percent commission on every ad sold. Prior to this year each student worked toward prize money only.

Each student received parental permission to be released from school to sell advertising. These students then got into teams of two to sell ads. The Ad Club was organized for people who had an interest in selling and business.

It would have been impossible to publish the yearbook without the selling of these ads, and the buyer of the yearbook should be very grateful to the Ad Club and to the people who bought ads.

Upward Bound was a program aimed at providing a college opportunity for students who could not otherwise attend. The 12 students involved in this program were expected to go to Central College during the summer so they could see what college life was all about. Besides going to Central College, the students attended some plays and often went out to eat at different restaurants.

There were 25 members in the Film Club. These members included tenth, eleventh and twelfth graders who wanted to know more about the movie business. The Film Club made one short movie, which was entitled, "Cannibalism in the Cars." The movie was an adaptation of a short story by Mark Twain.

The organization's sponsor was Mr. John Raymond, English teacher, and one of the main student leaders was senior Scott Arnold, who had a big part in producing the movie.

Did you ever wonder who the people were behind the scenes at all the plays and assemblies this year at East? The answer was found in the audio-visual and light crew organizations.

The light crew group was made up of eight students who were interested in the technical part of the theater. The light crew members showed their talents at all plays and assemblies, plus many dances.

The audio-visual group was sponsored by Mr. Adrian Martin and had 14 members. The group included two chairmen, senior Tim Driscoll and junior Roger Etzel.

Besides providing sound for all the assemblies and many dances, the A.V. group taped many East sporting events; the coaches used the tapes later.

The assembly committee was an organization that planned all the assemblies at East. Six different groups that wanted to participate in the assemblies usually comprised the organization. Each group had one to two representatives who attended meetings held at least three to four weeks before each assembly.

There were four main sponsors of the committee: Mrs. Judi Lodden, Mrs.Margaret Chapman, Mrs. Toni Johansen and Mr. Al Bagdonas.

Each meeting was chaired by the Student Government president. Kalina Reed, first semester president, said, "Although actual student interest in the assemblies was low, there was a large number of students who did help in preparing this year's assemblies."

The Student Government was very involved in tackling the problem of vandalism. This year, Student Government spent less time working on its traditional functions and spent more time working on student problems. Mr. Gary Brand, Student Government sponsor, felt that the group worked very well in small groups and committees.

Highlights of the year included Homecoming Week, accented by the Homecoming dance. Homecoming was totally coordinated by Student Government. When asked about the activities, Mr. Brand replied, "If the Homecoming is a success, then that always reflects back on Student Government as a success."

The Inter-City Student Council was a group of students from all the Metro schools who tried to find ways to improve schools through exchange days, etc., and who tried to smooth out school rivalries and help all Metro schools give a better education to their students. The group also did much charity work.

DECA (Distributive Education Clubs of America) is made up of three different areas: classroom instruction, club activities and on-the-job training. The club held many fund-raising activities, such as selling popcorn, salt and pepper shakers and bells, as well as doing inventory for stores.

DECA members participated in area and state competitions. The members participated in an area contest at South Ridge Mall, and a state contest was held at Hotel Fort Des Moines.

Having your own company, making your own products and selling them is what Junior Achievement was all about. The money they earned went to pay off renting the rooms where they held their meetings and to pay for the tools that they needed to use while making their products to sell.

South Ridge Mall and Valley West Mall both became market places for the companies to display and sell their products when Trade Fairs were held there.

OEA

OEA (Office Education Association) was a voluntary association of state youth groups and supporting office occupations.

It was designed to develop leadership abilities in the business system and ability in office occupations.

Membership in the OEA gave the student an opportunity to participate in State Officers' Leadership Conferences, as well as the Annual National OEA Conference.

The objectives of OEA were to develop student leadership, to develop vocational ability in office occupations, to promote student ambition for useful purposes and to understand and promote business.

The students went to regional state leadership conferences. The award winners at state conferences were eligible to go on to the National Conference held in San Antonio, Texas.

The students went to job interviews in the spring and fall for their on-the-job training. The students went to school in the mornings and worked in the afternoons.

BIBLE CLUB/CAMPUS LIFE

To believe or not believe was the question intriguing many students in 1980-81. Religion was a big question with high school students. Campus Life and Bible Club were trying to fulfill the needs of students in this area.

The Campus Life group felt that religion is a vital part of everyone's life and that it should be shared with others. Campus Life was a nondenominational group and was supported by concerned parents. Fifty students made up this group and they participated in activities like "the worlds's largest pillow fights" and camping out on weekends.

The Bible Club met every Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. for Bible study in room 117. Their goal was to learn more about the Bible, themselves and others.

STUDENT ASSISTANTS

Helping others was the main objective of the many student assistants. Seventy students helped out in the counseling office, main office, attendance center, nurse's office and the library.

Their task was simple; it was to help out in many ways: run errands, file various items, answer the switchboard and answer phones.

Students who were student assistants had to have some kind of free period, such as study hall or released time.

Working as a student assistant provided the student with experience in general clerical work, which was an incentive to future careers, which were close at hand.

Many students who worked in the various offices had future plans in the various clerical work they did or decided that counseling, nursing, secretarial and library work would fit their future needs.

Filing is one of the important skills that is required in being a good student assistant. Sophomore Denise Bolich demonstrates this while working in the office.

The Afro Club was revised as a group this year after being inactive for two years. The group was sponsored by Mrs. Erma Grabill.

To meet membership requirements, a student had to be willing to work for the objectives of the Afro Club and attend the meetings.

The Afro Club tried to achieve several goals: developing cooperation, positive interaction and unity among club members; increasing understanding and creating a positive image of the Afro-American culture; sponsoring worthwhile club, school and community activities to promote interest and respect for the club and its members.

The United Nations had been an annual event since 1963.

Thirty-five students represented East on the trip this year to New York and Washington. The trip took place over spring break.

For a student to be a part of this elite group, he had to fill out and turn in an application. The UN Board, tour directors, and chaperones of the 12 high schools then got together and chose the best 156, based on such things as extra-curricular activities, grade-point averages, school recommendations and one-page essays.

When asked in what ways the UN trip contributed to a student's education, Mr. Stan Thompson, a tour director and social science teacher, replied, "They get to see the things they've learned first hand."

Giving the members an opportunity to see how helping other people is beneficial to members' growth was a goal set by the Key Club.

The main function of the Key Club, sponsored by Mr. Harley Waller, was to serve as a service organization.

DEBATE

Taking fifth in State and fourth in the Metro, the debate team had a fantastic year. Their coach, Mr. Paul Klousia, and assistant coach, Mr. Kevin Cordray, feel that debating is a very educational and exciting experience.

The topic for the debates was "Consumer Product Safety." The debate team traveled throughout Iowa and made stops in Illinois, South Dakota, Nebraska and Minnesota.

The three divisions of debate were Novice – beginning debaters; Junior-Varsity – intermediate debaters; and Championship – most experienced debaters.

Each tournament consists of five or six rounds; each team includes two people.

The officers of the debate team were Allen Tomaszek, captain; Chuck Gray, vice-president; Karla Leeper, secretary; and Terry Hotchkiss, treasurer.

LETTERWINNERS/HUMAN RELATIONS

Human Relations has been in existence in its present form since 1973. The group was composed of 25 students and was sponsored by Mr. Don Graves.

When asked what was the main requirement to become a member of the group, Mr. Graves replied, "The students must have a sincere interest in working with students of all races."

The group met at least once a month. Through various activities, they tried to achieve several purposes. Some of these purposes were to gain a better understanding among themselves as individuals; to become more aware of themselves, their feelings, their attitudes and their images; and to become more open, sincere and sensitive to those around them.

Letterwinners was a group consisting of all those students who earned a letter. The group was sponsored by Mr. Jim Fox and the main activity was the selling of programs at the Boys' State Basketball Tournament.

PEER HELPERS

Seniors Kris Howes, Kent Landhuis, junior Mary Jo Batey and senior Renda Lutz perform in a "role" play to present problems to students and organizations.

Peer helpers have been a group here the last two years. The group is sponsored by Mrs. Judi Lodden and Mrs. Patricia Knott.

The principal function of the group was to help students solve problems relating to family, school, work and drug abuse.

The group experienced about the same amount of participation this year as it had the previous year.

One thing the group did this year that it hadn't done before was to design "role" plays to present different kinds of problems. These plays were presented both to students and to organizations like the PTSA (Parent-Teacher-Student Association).

There were various ways in which one could become a member of the group. A couple of the ways were by homeroom vote and by teacher referrals.

When asked how she liked the group, senior Kim Stark replied, "It was a great experience for all involved.

SILENT VIBES

Silent Vibrations included 16 active members under the leadership of Mrs. Ruth Ann Rhone. Try-outs were held at the end of first semester. To become a successful participant, a "C" average was required in addition to good conduct, good attendance and the ability to get along with other people.

Showing their pride for East was one of the many purposes of Silent Vibrations. Other purposes were to improve self-images and to provide creative entertainment for audiences.

Discipline, concentration, dependability and group cooperation were all ways in which membership contributed to members' education.

No fee was required to be a member of Silent Vibrations, except that each member paid for his own costume.

When trips were scheduled, money raised at each performance was used to cover gas expenses.

HONOR BAND/ALL-STATE BAND

One participant in the East High Orchestra qualified for All-State. This honor went to Brenda Piper, a senior who plays the viola. She then tried out for chair placement in All-State and placed in the top half of those who tried out.

Chosen for the ninth/tenth grade Iowa State Honor Band were freshman Jane Welch and sophomore Kelly Beardsley. For the eleventh/twelfth grade Iowa State Honor Band juniors Jim Karrett and Marion Thomas were selected. These four band members tried out for chair placement on January 17 at Iowa State, and played in the honor bands in a spring concert. Juniors John Gaffney and Don Jaques were chosen for the Drake Double Winds Ensemble Dec. 13.

Senior Brenda Piper was selected for the All-State Orchestra for the second year.

SCARLET MUSIC CO.

The Scarlet Music Company included 24 members who were chosen from the many who tried out. The student had to have a shining personality and the ability to dance, as well as plenty of extra time to devote to home practicing.

When asked about Scarlet Music Company, Ms. Linda Chamberlin said, "I enjoyed instructing the class very much. The students were a lot of fun to work with. I also devoted a lot of my extra time to work and rehearsals. Although it was a lot of work, it was well worth it in the end because people enjoyed the group very much."

The group performed at retirement homes and dinner meetings as well as at various other engagements. They also put on an annual show April 21.

SCARLET CHOIR

With over 100 students, Scarlet Choir was the largest choir here for some time. Last year there were two different choirs: Freshman Choir and Sophomore Choir. But this year, under the direction of Ms. Linda Chamberlin, the two groups were combined.

The large number of voices combined made this a very fine chorus. In order to make a well balanced chorus, Ms. Chamberlin said there must be at least two female voices for each male voice; otherwise the stronger male voices would easily overpower the rest. Because of this factor, girls in the chorus outnumbered the boys two to one.

With a shortage of sheet music, Ms. Chamberlin was faced with another problem. One way to pay for sheet music was to have fund-raising projects. Two major projects were the talent show in November and the giant garage sale in March. The purchase of Scarlet Choir T-shirts was the only expense paid by the students.

CONCERT CHOIR

Concert Choir was an enjoyable and educational course offered to students. Ms. Linda Chamberlin directed the Concert Choir. Besides performing five concerts at school, the Choir was involved in many community concerts.

Concert Choir performed in the All-East-Side Music Festival in March. The festival was presented here and the choirs that performed were Goodrell, Hoyt, Hiatt and East's Concert Choir. Ms. Chamberlin felt that the All-East-Side Music Festival was the highlight of the year. The Concert Choir also performed in a large-group contest in May.

Ms. Chamberlin said that the Concert Choir was a nice group and had a very well balanced sound. Concert Choir students worked very hard. They learned how to read music, and they studied vocal health, in which they learned how to sing properly without hurting or damaging their voices. The group at times worked with members of the band, who played instrumental solos for them as they sang.

SYMPHONIC WIND ENSEMBLE

Members of the Symphonic Wind Ensemble were very involved during their rehearsal. The Symphonic Wind Ensemble consisted of the top 60 members of the band. They played very difficult music designed to take to contests. The Symphonic Wind Ensemble played in St. Louis, Missouri at the Gateway Band Festival and received a Division "2" rating nationally. Mr. Don Bury, the group's instructor, felt that this was a well disciplined and well performing group.

CONCERT BAND & ORCHESTRA

After the football season was over and the fans moved indoors, the band kept playing. Actually, there were two bands, one headed by Mrs. Cindy Schroeder, the other by Mr. Donald Bury.

Both the Concert Band and the Symphonic Wind Ensemble were divisions of the Marching Scarlets, the marching band so often viewed and heard by many at football games. "One of the main purposes of Concert Band," said Mr. Bury, "is to go through daily routine things and to learn how to play better."

Another music group, the Orchestra, directed by Mr. Bury, met for a daily class to practice for their performances.

Consisting largely of string and wind instruments, the Orchestra performed at Christmas and once in the spring as well. Unlike other music groups, the Orchestra didn't travel to perform or take part in contests.

Said Mr. Bury, "This year's Orchestra is the best I've directed since I've been here at East"—a compliment of the highest degree.

Graduation had little effect on the orchestra because many members would return.

JAZZ BAND

Take a trip to Disney World? That's what the Jazz Band did. But for them, it wasn't all fun and games. Included in their schedule was a performance for the folks in Florida.

Most of the Jazz Band's performances, however, were in competition. Places traveled to included Ankeny, Pella, Creston (all in Iowa) and other area schools and colleges. At the end of the competitive season, which extended from December 1 to April 1, the Jazz Band made the most exciting trip of all, the State Jazz Championship in Ames.

The Jazz Band, directed by Mr. Don Bury, included five saxaphone players, five trumpet players, five trombone players, one drummer, a pianist, a person on the bass drum and occasionally someone played the vibraphones (a mallet instrument) and combo drums.

MARCHING SCARLETS

Junior Drum Majors Wendy Behrendsen and Dan Gathercole show a corps-style expression.

Freshman Shawn Nelson concentrates on keeping the beat. Senior Eric Shafer and sophomore Bert Walls do the same.

Seven o'clock practices every morning in the cold and dampness paid off at Valley, Pella and Knoxville; at all three, the Marching Scarlets received Division "1" ratings for their halftime performances.

Not only did they work hard to be better musicians, but they also improved their appearance by outfitting the rest of the band in new corps-style uniforms, which were purchased over a period of three years. The Marching Scarlets also outfitted the Color Guard in new uniforms, and plans were made to do the same for Steppers.

Fund-raisers were a big part of the year. Selling cheese, popcorn and M&M's were just a few projects to help them earn credits for the spring trip.

In April they were off to Tennessee, where they performed at Opry Land in Nashville.

Also, they marched in the Drake Relays Parade, at the Armed Forces Day Parade and at Pella during the Tulip Festival.

STEPPERS

Steppers kept themselves busy by being involved in many different activities. Some of these activities included marching in the Halloween parade downtown and participating in the National Cheerleading Association camp for pom pon girls during the summer. They brought back many new ideas from camp and incorporated these into their routines.

Mrs. Marjorie Crawford, sponsor, felt that the Steppers would be a sharper unit if the size of the group was reduced, so there were only 32 members, compared to last year's 44 members.

Steppers was considered an auxiliary group under Band, but they also performed independently.

The officers included co-captains Pam Weinheimer and Krista Straw and treasurer Bobette Erickson.

COLOR GUARD

Hard work, determination and long hours of practicing helped Color Guard achieve their goal—winning first place in the Military Division in the Iowa State Drill Team Contest.

Many schools throughout Iowa participated in the State Competition. By winning first place as a group, each girl got a first-place ribbon, and the group was awarded with a State Championship trophy and $50 in prize money.

Color Guard performed as an auxiliary group with the Band at contests, parades and at football games. They performed as a group at assemblies and at basketball games.

This was the first year that Color Guard had two uniforms, one which they purchased and one corps-style uniform which the Marching Scarlets purchased for them to wear when they marched with the band. The sponsor of Color Guard was Mrs. Cindy Schroeder.

CHEERLEADERS

Cheerleaders' voices were heard loudly and clearly at all sporting events. Practicing early in the mornings helped make excellent timing and cheering.

Tryouts were held in the spring of 1980 for girls interested in becoming Cheerleaders. Many girls tried out for fun, but others tried out for the opportunity to help promote school spirit.

The sponsor was Mr. Stan Thompson. Each Cheerleading squad had captains, chosen by each squad. The captains were as follows:

Varsity Scarlet Squad—Valerie Voss; assistant for the Red Squad—Lisa Olauson; assistant for the Black Squad—Carol Buxton; Sophomore Squad—Stephanie Blanos; Freshman Squad—Lisa Helverson.

Besides cheering, they made signs for the athletes' buses and helped sell buttons at games.

QUILL STAFF

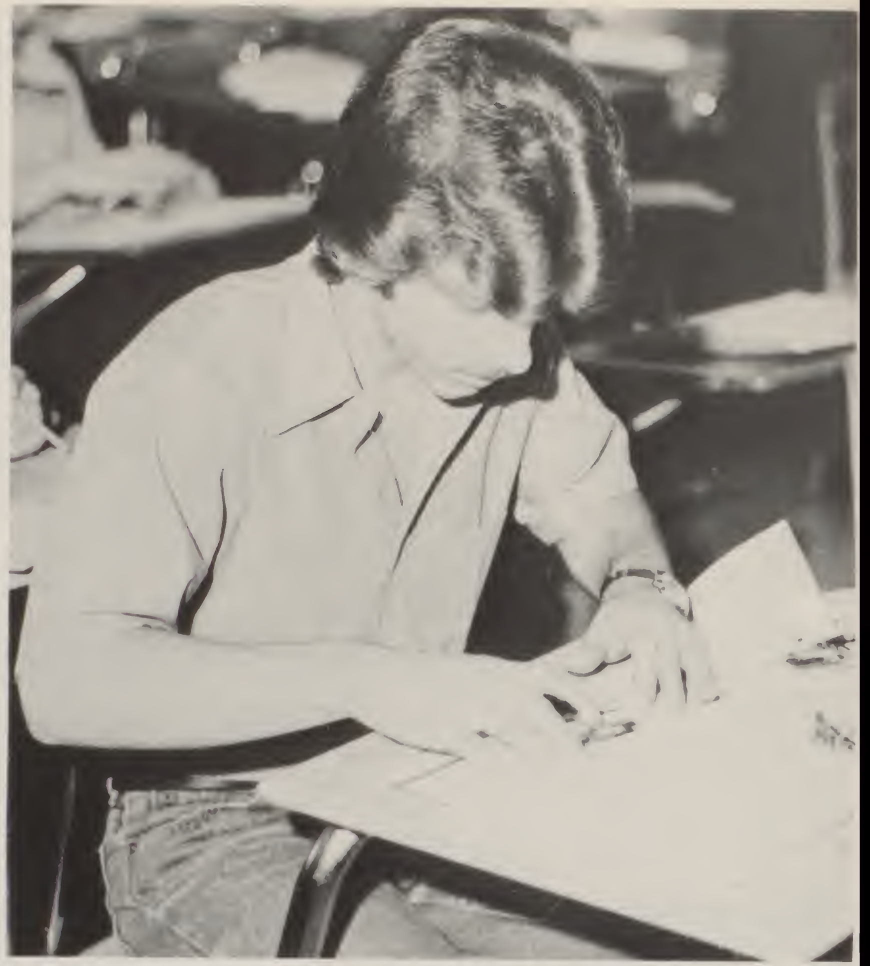
Deadlines, detail, revision and lots of tender loving care were items taken into consideration to create the best yearbook possible.

The editors of the Quill were chosen last year and were already working on the yearbook during the summer when they attended workshops at the University of Iowa and at Iowa State University.

To be accepted to be on the staff, a student usually has to have a "B" or better grade in his sophomore English class because he does a lot of writing, interviewing and taking notes in the yearbook class.

Other skills were used in laying out the yearbook, such as picture cropping, measuring and designing layouts.

Even after the last pages are turned in to be printed, the staff continues to work on the spring supplement, which includes spring and summer sports and all major spring activities. The spring supplement is distributed in November of the next year.



Senior Allen Tomaszek crops the picture so it will fit in the space provided.

SCROLL STAFF

"An outstanding group" was the comment of Mr. George Christian, adviser, when asked his opinion of the Scroll Staff.

The staff experimented with the newspaper greatly, and some of the major changes were the style of writing and trying to write interesting stories by quoting individuals instead of just giving facts.

Mid-year, a different style of layout began; the ads were run down the sides of the paper and the copy was placed on the insides. This prevented the look of the conventional "stair-step" layout.

One element that remained the same was the size of the page, which was 17½ x 22 inches.

Two journalism conventions were attended during the summer. One was in Ames, Iowa, at Iowa State University. It was attended by seniors Norbert Kaut and Fred Christian, as well as junior Kris Schroeder. The other convention was located in Iowa City and was attended by seniors Lisa Stamper and Paul Boyum.

Making sure all details are covered is a necessity. Seniors Renda Lutz, Dan Ross and Fred Christian happily conquer "Mr. Detail."

Teamwork is very helpful in writing good articles. Senior Renda Lutz and junior Kris Schroeder are involved in a discussion concerning an upcoming deadline.

GRAPHICS

"Graphics" is a more accurate name for "printing," says Mr. Bruce Hines. In the years before, the graphics staff was called the printing staff. This year it was changed to better fit the functions of the class.

This year there were 15 students on the graphics staff. They printed the school newspaper, programs and stationery. Each year Mr. Hines tries to experiment with new ideas and techniques; for example, three and four-color prints.

This past year they did jobs for the Des Moines Police Department, Sayorville Jaycees, churches, individuals and small private companies.

The graphics class also went to two demonstrations (August and November) at Veterans Memorial Auditorium. These demonstrations helped to build public relations with the community.

The only other high school with a competing graphics class is Tech High School.

Seniors Randy Hinkle and Jim Cockerham display their finished work for graphics.

PHOTOGRAPHERS

The photographers started the year with a positive attitude. Lisa Woodring, senior and co-chief photographer, commented, "I believe this year's yearbook and paper will be outstanding because our equipment and ideas are better than ever before." The dedication of a photographer is a must because of the work required outside of class.

The four senior co-chiefs are Peggy Hollingshead, Diane Bebensee, Jim Cline and Lisa Woodring.

The photographers entered a few of their pictures in contests during the year. In the Park Festival Contest at North High School held in October, Todd Adamson received first place for his outstanding picture.

A budget is set each year for the photographers to pay for film, paper and accessories. But if new equipment was needed, they used the money from memory mates, from dance pictures and/or team pictures.

Todd Adamson, senior, shows an example of the extremes that photographers go to in order to get good pictres.

Strenuous activity produces better team

Forty-nine football players running in place. Forty-nine football players abruptly falling to their chests at the sound of Coach Jim Fox's whistle. This is a typical description of the ever-popular "up-downs" introduced to the team by the new head coach.

New changes were also brought about in the coordinating of the coaching staff. It was broken down into individual responsibilities. Mr. John Bankus was defensive coordinator, Mr. Marty Mohler was linebacker and defensive back coach, and Mr. Ray Lipovac was receiver and offensive back coach.

Although this was Coach Fox's first year at East, he felt that "the 1980 season helped to establish the team before individuals, an aggressive, swarming defense and an offense that attempted to execute to perfection."

Seniors Jeff Cavil and Bob Reynolds annihilate Dowling's running back. The Scarlets were defeated 6-28.

Prospects for NFL? 1981 varsity, heed

"They didn't crawl into the weeds and hide when they got behind," said the head freshman football coach, Mr. Mark Hurley, when asked about the squad's abilities. According to Coach Hurley, the team's unwillingness to give up kept them going throughout the season.

The assistant coaches, Mr. John Latchem and Mr. David Frost, along with Coach Hurley, felt that they had the squad performing to the best of their ability when they met with the Dowling Maroons, and they obviously did. The freshman Scarlets had a chance to beat Dowling for the first time in Metro history. It seemed that they were going to do just that when East scored a safety. The two points were not awarded to East, however, for the required number of players was not on the field and the play did not count.

When asked what he felt the team's main strengths were, Coach Hurley stressed the amount of raw ability in a large number of the players. In referring to this, Coach Hurley said, "Ability-wise, these guys are gonna be something some day."

As the freshman offensive line set up for what they hope to be a large gain in yardage, quarterback Eric Seskis begins the countdown.

Coach refers to sophs as a 'team of class'

As a prelude to each game, the members of the sophomore football team came to school on game day in their Sunday best. Ranging from shirts and ties to three-piece-suits, they were credited as being a "team of class" by the head sophomore coach, Mr. Gayle Burgett. Mr. Walt Kennedy and Mr. Tom Lutz assisted in coaching the team. Through the contributing efforts of the team and the coaches, the squad continued to improve throughout the season.

Coach Burgett felt that the highlight of the season was definitely the East-Hoover game. East was trailing 19-7 at the half and returned from the locker room to dominate the Huskies and end the game with a 24-21 score. Hoover had been struck with Scarlet fever.

Brenda Rose to state – second time around

The cross-country and distance running teams, coached by Mr. Don Graves and Mr. Dick Phipps, ran through yet another fast-paced season as five returning letterwinners and the 13 other team members showed what they were made of.

Six freshmen out for the sport helped make up the youngest team East has ever had. Freshman Jennifer Hultman went down as the best freshman runner ever, with a time of 13:16 for the two-mile run at the district meet.

Senior Brenda Rose gained the spotlight as she earned the honor of going to the state meet for the second year in a row. Brenda's time in the state meet was 12:49 but she has a career record of 12:07. She has been the only girl runner from East High ever to go to state in distance running.

Outstanding talent wasn't limited to the girls, though; returning junior letterwinner Caesar Smith tied East's two-mile record (set in 1976) with a time of 9:52.

Other seniors showing exceptional ability were Todd Adamson and Kent Landhuis.

Senior Todd Adamson and sophomore David Condon stick together during a race. Todd is a one year letterwinner in cross-country.

Jefferson, Hecker take plunge in State meet

Divers Jill Jefferson and Heidi Hecker qualified for state diving meets. Senior Jill Jefferson improved the varsity record three times, set five meet records, and held the varsity record for six dives. Sophomore Heidi Hecker set a record in the 11-dive competition, set three meet records and is ranked seventh in State. The team finished second in the North Invitational. These were many of the season highlights.

Out of the 27 who tried out, 21 made the team. Returning from last year were the seven letterwinners: sophomores Becky Zallek and Heidi Hecker; junior Teresa Harne; and seniors Jill Jefferson, Kris Howes, Janna Richards, and Kathy Zapf.

According to Coach Ken Gaeth, the outstanding swimmers were freshman Julie Mahedy, Karen Weiland; sophomores Becky Zallek, Heidi Hecker; junior Teresa Harne; and seniors Jill Jefferson and Janna Richards. All around, the girls' swim team had a "splashing" season.

V-ball team bumps, sets, spikes its way to Metro Championship

"... Another one bites the dust ..."

An improvised version of this popular song by the rock group Queen was often sung by the girls' volleyball team after one of their numerous wins.

Some cited the spirit generated by this song and the new uniforms as being the determining factors of the outstanding 14-0 conference record.

The players named yet another reason—the effort and skill that was put out by each team member.

This effort was demonstrated by diving after or digging a hard-hit spike. Setting a perfect set and hammering a spike were two more examples of this effort.

Leading the volleyball team were captain Ilga Kalnins and co-captain April Brun. Both were also selected to the State special mention team and the Metro first team.

Junior Diane Reynolds and senior Lisa Woodring made the Metro honorable mention team.

The players were well rewarded as the team earned itself the impressive title: UNDEFEATED METRO CHAMPS! They also had the honor of becoming the first volleyball team in the city to have both its varsity and junior varsity teams emerge undefeated.

The championship match was against Valley, which had been the Scarlets' toughest competition during the regular season.

After a grueling four-game match, Valley succeeded in beating East, thus ruining their chance of gaining a State Tournament berth.

Despite the intense rivalry, both teams enjoyed playing against each other. Coach Erma Grabill summed up the teams feelings: "I enjoyed playing against Valley and so did the girls. Valley was good competition."

Senior Lisa Woodring serves in a game against Lincoln.

Five swimmers qualify for State events

The boys' tankers swam 180 miles in practice, with nine letterwinners returning to their team: seniors Fred Christian, Alan Gustafson, Kevin Moore, Dave Nelson and Randy Swan; juniors Jeff Mumma, Russ Watson and Terry Young. Lettering in their first year of swimming were freshmen Roger Ites, Shawn Nelson, Jeff Richards, Steve Swan and Troy Olson.

The best swimmers of 1981 were senior Randy Swan, who finished fifteenth in the individual at State with a time of 0:56.0. This was the second best time in school history.

Senior Kevin Moore qualified for State as a member of the relay team. Other members were Steve Swan, Randy Swan, and Russ Watson. Alan Gustafson also qualified for State in the freestyle relay.

Junior Russ Watson achieved the title of being the best all-around swimmer, having cut five seconds from his time in one week for the 200-yard individual. He also set a new varsity record in the 100-yard breaststroke with a time of 1:07.35.

Gymnasts flip their way to State contest

For the second consecutive year, the gymnastic season was culminated with the entire team going to state competition. Led by Head Coach Joyce Vickroy and Assistant Coach Diane Williams, the team had an outstanding season. Consisting of eight returning letterwinners and four new members, the team placed second in the District and Regional meets before placing sixth in the State meet. Senior Laurie Beal placed fourth in the State on the balance beam.

Team's main strength: 35 stick it out

One of the strengths of the wrestling squad was the large number of team members. Thirty-five young men finished the season. The 35 included 11 returning letterwinners, who helped the Scarlets reach a 2-6 season record.

Coach Tom Lutz felt that the team wrestled best against Carlisle. He also felt that lack of experience at their lower weights was their biggest weakness.

Assisting Coach Lutz were Coach Gayle Burgett and Mr. Steve Hanson.

Coach Lutz said that he was encouraged with the season because of the number of people who finished the year. "We'll lose some seniors that will be missed, but we have many capable people that will do a good job," he said.

Freshmen show agility, potential during season

Although the boys' A and B team season record wasn't very impressive, Coach Paul Birocci commented:, "I'm confident that these kids can help East in the future if they continue to work hard and improve, because they have quite a bit of talent."

He cited lack of experience and weak fundamentals as the main weaknesses of both teams.

Continual improvement and determination were two of the main strengths of the teams.

Sophomores continue to show improvement

Willingness to practice, hard work, and a close team relationship were the strengths of the boys' sophomore basketball team, coached by Mr. Jerry Hall.

Coach Hall said of this year's squad, "They worked hard, and even in a losing season, individual skills did improve."

The team was led in both the scoring and rebounding departments by Loren Jacobsen.

Coach Hall believes the team's best performance of the season occurred when they came within one basket of tying Roosevelt in their first game.

The team ended the season with 3 wins 15 losses.

Soph girl cagers capture Metro crown

The girls' sophomore team won the Metro Championship this year with a record of 14 wins against only one loss.

Mr. Gary Brand, head coach, commented, "This team improved the more from the beginning of the year to the end of the season than any other team I have coached."

According to Mr. Brand, the team's outstanding forward was Sue Hill; Desi McGuire, Linda Estes, Yolanda Newman and Shari Rose made up a balanced guard court.

The team's main strength was teamwork. They played as a unit the entire season.

Fourth consecutive Metro title for girls

The girls' varsity basketball team won their fourth consecutive Metropolitan Conference title by tying Abraham Lincoln High School and compiling a 13-1 record.

Head Coach Bob Hanson and Assistant Coach Sharon Hanson led their team to second-round sectionals, where East was defeated by Lincoln.

Seniors Jeanne Minor and Jodi Nelson, along with junior Roxanne Johnson, received first team all-conference honors. Second team all-conference was received by junior Opie Lowery. Honorable mention was given to seniors Pam Eyerly and Lori Hasstedt.

Assistant Coach Hanson said about the season, "We surprised a lot of people with our record; we had, however, wanted to do better."

Here Mrs. Hanson is shown coaching the defensive players while Mr. Hanson and Mr. Brand instruct the offensive players.

Scarlet boys compete in Sub-State tourney

"It seems like we've said it a lot this year, but the thing that's gonna win this game for us is rebounding and tough defense," exclaimed Head Coach Chuck Sutherland as the Scarlets left their locker room entering the Sub-State tournament. Tough defense, rebounding and quickness strengthened the team's abilities and earned them 10 victories.

Led by team captain LeCraig McGuire, the Scarlets traveled to Ames to play Ankeny and Ames in district tournaments and defeated both to advance to Sub-State competition at Vet's Auditorium. There they played Lincoln, who was ranked first in the state. Though their sights were set on a second straight class 3-A State tournament berth, the Scarlet boys were brought to a halt with a 10-11 season record.

Coached by Assistant Coach John Bankus, East's junior varsity team was able to obtain a winning season with a 5-4 record, giving a promising outlook for the next season of play.

Senior Board leads class of 451 members

The Senior Board included 14 members, led by Brad Shaffer. The Board determined all the senior class' activities and money-raising methods.

Mr. Al Bagdonas, adviser, felt that the initial kick-off of the senior activities was the Senior Breakfast, and that the Board was responsible for the success of the Senior Class.

"Organizing and sponsoring Class Day was important because it is one of the outstanding highlights of the Senior Class' activities. It revealed their accomplishments, rewards and abilities," said Mr. Bagdonas.

Attention senior guys: Uncle Sam wants you

Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines! These were just a few organizations that caught the attention of young men born in 1962 or 1963 when they went to a nearby postoffice to register for the draft.

Registration for males born in 1962 took place during the week of January 5.

Males born in 1963 were required to register within 30 days after their birthday.

Registering did not mean there was going to be a war. The U.S. just wants to be prepared if the freedom of our country is ever endangered!

Friends that were old and friends that were new,
And that special friend that always was true.

Growing up together and then
drifting apart,
Always an ending and now a new start,

As graduation appears with the friends that we've met,
We talk about times
that we'll never forget

We hold our head high as we bid our last farewell.
Where life will lead us
only time will tell

A "Keep in touch" and a "Promise I will,"
A "Remember when," then all is still.

A place in my heart the memories will stay,
As we say our good-bye's
and go on our way.

On August 28, 1980, 459 juniors began another eventful year traveling through the crowded halls of East High.

Requirements were sweating through gym on Tuesdays and Thursdays, fighting along with the founders in the new U.S. History textbooks and punctuating the sentences of English.

As crowded as classes may have seemed, total enrollment was almost the same as a year ago.

Although not very popular, watching films seems to take away from the drabness of reading the book and answering questions.

Junior Class officers don't monkey around

As of Oct. 28, the Junior Class, which numbered 458, had four new leaders. This group included Kent Reed, president; Cheryl Rodda, vice-president; Sue Shaw, secretary; and Teresa Harne, treasurer.

Working with the officers was the Junior Class adviser, Mr. Bill McCullough. The election for these positions was held Oct. 27, and it was open to any junior who wanted to sign up.

Shorthand Lab helps juniors to pick speed

To help practice their shorthand skills second semester, juniors in Shorthand 2 used the Electronic Futures Incorporated Shorthand Lab.

The EFI contains three different notebooks, each having a different tape with a different speed inside.

Concentrating hard on their pads and pens, juniors Onnalisa Russell, Becky Hohl and Shari Baumeister practice taking shorthand from the EFI Shorthand Lab.

Self-defense rapidly becomes a necessity

For the past eight years East has offered a unique course: Self-defense. This is a very basic Physical Education elective offered to juniors and seniors in the fall, and to freshmen and sophomores in the spring. Only girls may take the course.

According to the teacher, Mrs.Joyce Vickroy, the main objective of the class is to touch on only the basics of self-defense. The course provides information on how to handle an attacker with such techniques as side kicks, finger jabs, hand chops and knee kicks. The teacher also used films and speakers on such subjects as rape prevention.

The course has been taught for the past five years by Mrs. Vickroy. This year she was assisted by Miss Angie Sommers, a Student teacher from Drake University.

Girls who want to learn to defend themselves take advantage of the self-defense course. Juniors Doty McElvogue, Misty Tilley and Deedra Brooks demonstrate a technique used to stop an attacker.

Biceps developed with modern Marcy 16 station weight machine

Many biceps, triceps and quadriceps were developed during the year through the use of the new weight equipment purchased by the school.

School funds, hat sales and a donation from the Booster Club helped to meet the $8,500 cost of the equipment, which was purchased at Hopkins Sporting Goods.

Principal Norman Miller made the decision on what equipment to buy, but he had some help from three teachers: Mr. Tom Lutz, Mathematics Department; Mr. Ken Gaeth, Physical Education Department; and Mr. Alfred Willis, Mathematics Department. These three went to other schools and observed what type of equipment they were using, then submitted a list to Mr. Miller, who made the final decision on what was to be bought. A Marcy 16 station weight machine and three sets of 400-pound Olympic weights were purchased.

Many people used the new weight equipment to develop their muscles. Athletic teams were encouraged to use them as much as possible. The Physical Education Department offered weight control and circuit training (weight lifting) where the new equipment was used.

Carpools help juniors save money, energy

Beep! Beep! That was the sound you heard at seven-thirty in the morning as you ran to a carload of friends ready to go to school. This is an example of a carpool.

Carpooling is a system where a group of people make plans to ride together or take turns driving in order to save money and energy.

With gas prices the way they were, many people couldn't afford to drive to school everyday, so they found someone in the same position and formed a carpool.

Carpooling not only saved on the wallet, but it made things cozier in the winter.

Grins on the faces of juniors Wendy Behrendsen, Don Jaques, Dan Gathercole, Jim Karrett, Robin Brady, Pam Wylie and friends shows that carpooling is not only cozy, but a lot of fun.

Simulator 1/3 of requirement toward license

The simulator, classwork and actual driving hours were required for every student wanting to receive his drivers license.

Through the instruction in these three activities, a student got all the experience he needed to get his drivers license and hit the streets.

Eating lunch at school was an economic thing to do. Some prices did, however, increase over the previous year.

There were many items from which students could choose to eat for lunch. They ranged from soups and salads to sack lunches to regular entrees.

The students did encounter a few problems, such as long lines and overcrowdedness in the lunch room. This problem was partly solved by the use of five different lunch lines.

Sophs find out what they're made of ... DNA

In biology class, many sophomores found out what they are made of. They also learned about their own lives and the lives of other species.

In order to graduate, a student must have one full credit of science, and biology is a popular choice, but the student may also choose other classes such as ecology, physiology, chemistry, physical science and physics.

According to Mr. Don DeMouth, chairperson of the Counseling Department, 70 percent of the sophomores took biology.

Mr. Paul Sloan (left) shows sophomores (clockwise) Tammie Hill, Kathy Hull, Rod Grafton and Mark Overton how to build a DNA molecule.

Freshmen get early start in politics

Chosen to represent the Freshmen Class were Erik Seskis (President), Tom Reed (Vice-President), Debbie Meek (Treasurer), and Denise Bolich (Secretary). These young officers, although not burdened with life-and-death decisions, were committed to raising money for the Freshmen Class and gaining valuable experiences for future activities.

When asked why they had joined in a responsible activity such as this, they all replied, "I want to have memories of being involved."

Locker signs contribute to football spirit

Spirit signs were put on the team members' lockers of various sports to encourage people to participate in cheering for the teams.

The signs were put up before school so they could be admired all day. There was a different slogan used each week to designate the team played or just to wish the player good luck in the game.

The signs were very creative and required a lot of time to make.

This weekly activity of displaying signs contributed to everybody's team spirit.

Freshmen Kelly Gratias and Jim Gallagher admire the spirit signs put up during football season.

Students may obtain free bus rides to school

Many students found that riding the bus to and from school was a gas-saving, inexpensive mode of transportation.

Free bus rides were provided by the MTA (Metropolitan Transit Authority) if a student lived three miles from school.

Tickets or passes were distributed to them.

One requirement for riding the bus is to be at the bus stop before departure time. Freshman Billy Moore attempts to get a ride.

Finding time to study and a quiet place to concentrate has always been a problem for students. Freshmen Misty Wright and Shelly Plude discover that the library fills these needs.

Frosh stake claim to their final four years

After completing nine years of school, 567 students staked a claim to their freshman year in the fall. It became evident to them that high school wasn't all sports and parties, as many students had hoped it would be. They learned that a diploma requries 16 credits and that this was the year to start earning them.

It was also found that an additional amount of homework and studying was necessary to do this. However, this proved to be no problem, for the year passed and those that were previously freshmen were on their way to being the following year's sohomores.

Freshmen Jeff Tidwell, Chris Cameron and David Bell scaled great heights to express the spirit they possess for their school and country.

Neal's trick for chewers: collect their gum in pumpkin

A Social Science teacher, Mr. Bill Neal, has found an unusual solution for the problem of kids who don't use "forbearance and restraint" in chewing gum. Mr. Neal says that it is mostly girls who pop, twirl and blow bubbles with their gum.

When Mr. Neal either sees or hears gum, he retrieves his pumpkin, labeled "contraband," and adds to his collection. The collection has been piling up for years now and future gum-chewers will surely keep it growing.

Freshman Shelley Donnelly drops her gum in the pumpkin after being caught by Mr. Neal.

Goals reached with guidance from teachers

Renee Clemenson and Becky Nalevanko, choreographers from South East Polk, give the Steppers pointers as Mrs. Marjorie Crawford, sponsor, agrees.

Mrs. Nancy Hansen, DECA teacher, and Mrs. Karla Halstead, Lerner's store manager, devise a DECA project for students.

Mrs. B. Joanne Frank, sponsor, and Glynnis Wolver, senior, work together to finish the signs for PEP club.

Mr. Adrian Martin, TV Production teacher, George Harwood, junior, and Roger Etzel, junior, rush to fix the sound before the assembly starts.

1) Mr. Donald Murphy illustrates the importance of government and knowing its terms to one of his classes. 2) Senior Barry Dyer takes his time to get the precise markings on his mechanical drawing project. 3) Senior Randy Hinkle inks the rollers to get ready to roll. The printing classes printed all 12 issues of the Scroll. 4) Our Quill photographer gets a peek of one of the dedicated students studying in the library.

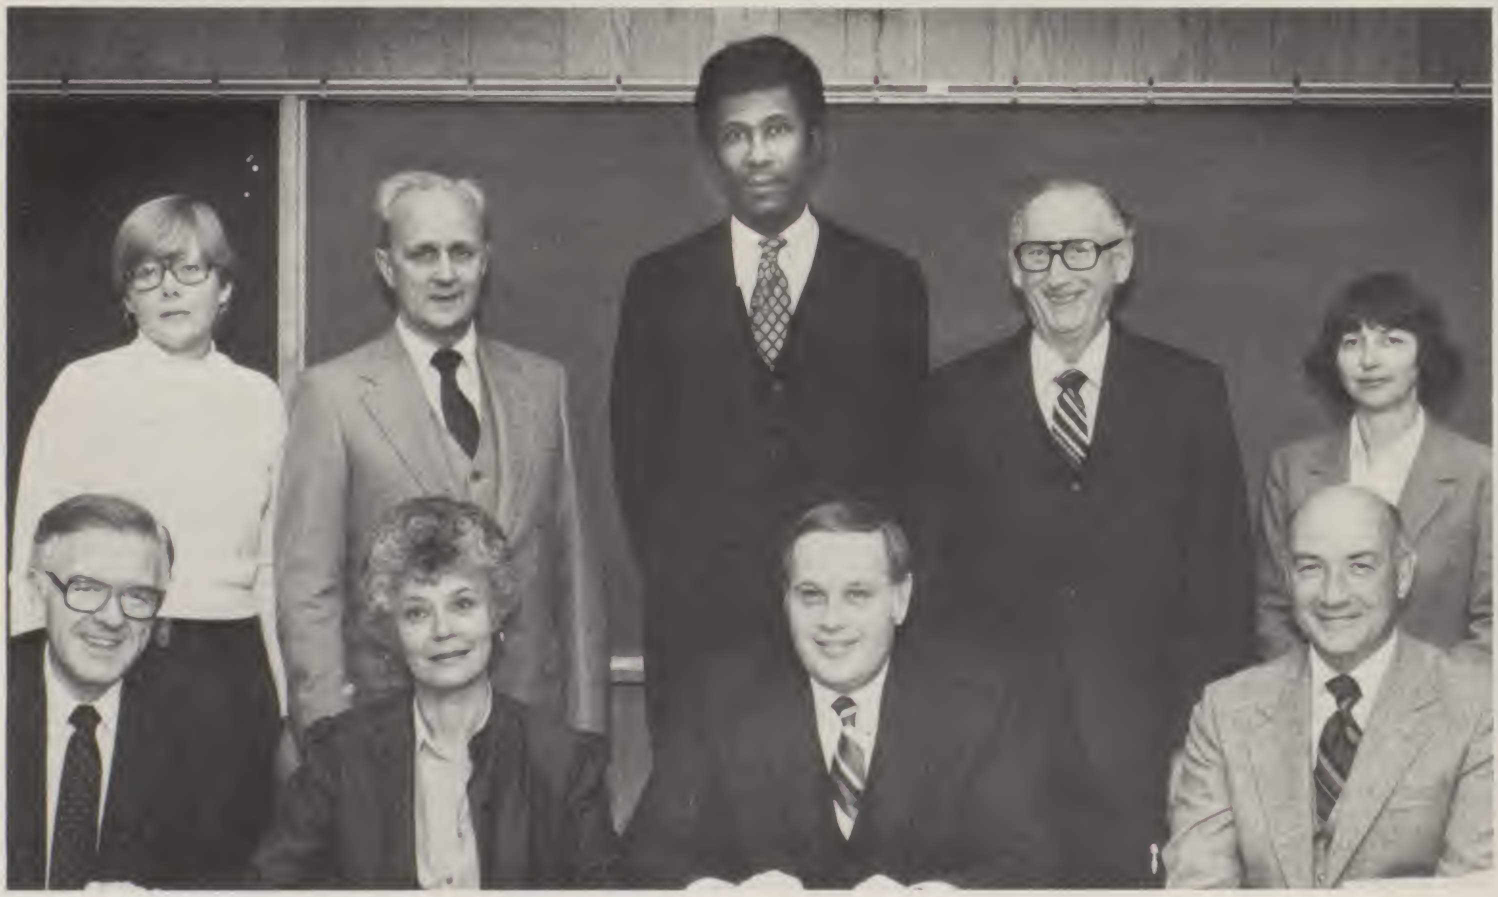
Inflation deflates amount of money available

"Inflation hurts us a great deal," stated Mr. Norman Miller, principal. Inflation especially affected and hurt special programs.

The high per-pupil cost programs like debate, School Within a School and foreign languages stood in some danger of either having their budgets cut severely or being eliminated altogether. These programs were evaluated by Mr. Miller and decisions were made accordingly.

However, Mr. Miller did not feel that the lack of funds really hurt the quality of education. He commented "Beyond a certain point, there is little correlation between the quality of education and the money spent."

Mr. Norman Miller, principal, talks to the student body over the intercom.



BOARD OF DIRECTORS. ROW 1: Mr. James Cunningham (Secretary), Mrs. Sue Luthens (Vice-president), Mr. Raymond Palis (President), Dr. William Anderson (Superintendent). ROW 2: Mrs. Karen Williams, Mr. Ian Binnie, Mr. Nolden Gentry, Mr. Frank Hildreth, Mrs. Betty Grunberg.

Mr. Al Bagdonas, vice-principal, confers with Mrs. Dorothea Brotherson, Steno Clerk.

Mr. Bill McCollaugh, vice-principal, talks to a parent over the telephone.

Seniors assigned to all three advisers

"It would be much more effective to have a full-time adviser for each grade level," said Mr. Al Bagdonas, vice-principal, to one of the changes this year.

Mr. Miller, the principal, this year assigned the seniors equally among the advisers. Last year the freshmen were assigned equally among the advisers.

One reason for the change was that Mr. Miller, principal, felt that the freshmen needed one full-time adviser more than the seniors did. The reasons that the problem arose in the first place was that when the freshmen came here from the various junior high schools, no vice-principal came with them.

Mr. Don Powell, vice-principal, visits with juniors Kim Milligan, Karen Wilson, Brad Shannahan, Bill O'Boyle, and senior Melinda White.

Sophomores Julie Hernandez, Tammy Hill, Karen Hewitt, Tom Villirillo and Steve Moore wait as Mr. Gordon Opel and Mrs. Dorothy Deitch try to decide which student's turn it is to meet with a counselor.

Counselors have big job guiding students

The counselors felt that their main purpose was to help the teachers in providing for the students, resolve minor conflicts before they become major problems and provide a special service to kids with personal and family problems.

There were two new counselors, Mr. Gordon Opel and Mrs. Norma Needham, and a counselor who returned to East, Mrs. Toni Johansen. Mr. Harold Baeth and Mr. Donald DeMouth were back again and were very helpful counselors. Mr. Opel was very excited about coming here, since he is an East graduate.

A success of the Counseling Department lay in their ability to work with the students. Mr. DeMouth said "I just think that from my experience in going to different schools and being able to evaluate them, the relationship of our counselors with our teachers is really good."

Two counselors, Mrs. Norma Needham and Mrs. Toni Johansen, need the same file at the same time.

Junior Doreen Nelson gets counseling from Mr. Don DeMouth, Mr. Gordon Opel, Mrs. Toni Johansen, Mr. Harold Baeth and Mrs. Norma Needham.

Students produce and practice media skills

Communications Media classes were classes in which students learned by producing. Journalism, photography, printing and television were all Communications Media classes. Journalism students learned how to plan layouts, crop pictures and write explanatory copy as they produced either the Scroll Newspaper or the Quill Yearbook. Photography students learned as they took pictures and enlarged or reduced their sizes for the yearbook and newspaper. The printers also helped with the yearbook and newspaper, and the television production students learned skills needed for producing television programs.

Boys, girls alike prepare for their future

Home Economics included many different courses: Personal Development, which was beginning to be more popular after being a new class last year; Personal Family Living; Beginning and Advanced Child Development, which includes going to the Day Care Center in the advanced area; Home Furnishing; and Beginning and Advanced Foods.

Miss Erma Grabill, chairperson of the Home Economics Department, feels that boys and girls both are becoming more involved with these types of classes. She believes that the many professional teachers, with their new ideas, really taught the students the skills they would need to make their lives in the outside world easier.

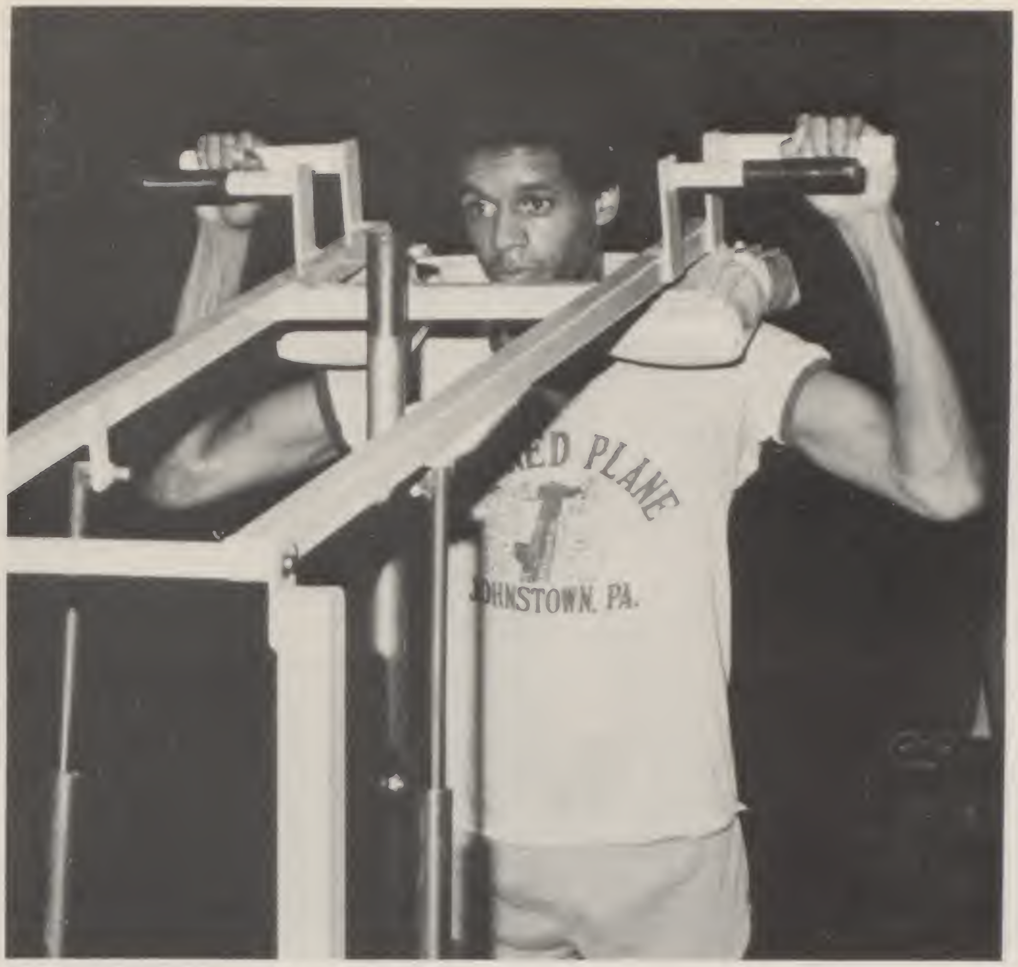
Sophomores Diane Hilliard and JoAnne Peters dice up cheese and other ingredients to make up part of their meal.

Sophomore Debbie Wheeler, senior Mi Ae Pak, and sophomore Tammy Allen look through various pattern books for new ideas.



Cross country skiing, skating skills tried out

The Physical Education and Health Programs were basically the same as last year except that Mr. Gayle Burgett taught the ninth graders Health and P.E. and Miss Sandy Thorpe taught Health on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The people who took Early Bird Gym were taught by a new teacher, Mr. John Latchem.

Something new was tried; to incorporate the weight machine into the classes already offered.

Plans at press time included cross country skiing and ice skating. Miss Thorpe put in a request to flood an area by Hiatt Junior High for ice-skating use and then to share the area with Hiatt. Cross country skiing was taught on Easts' snow covered lawn.

Curtis Morrow, junior, shows how much he can take on the weight machine.

Junior Mike James takes a flying leap while junior Terry Young dives in. Still hesitating to get in are seniors Rick Peterson, Randy Williamson, Astrid Ekman, Shelley Hull, Denise Waychoff, and junior Preston Schrier.

Mr. Ken Gaeth, swimming coach, helped many students realize the importance of swimming.

Senior Danny Doornenbal carefully sands down a truck in the garage. Sanding is only one of the many skills taught in shop classes like Auto Mechanics.

Industrial Arts: training for future careers

Industrial Arts proved to be a very useful class, according to one auto mechanics student, senior Shellby Cook. Although she had no plans of becoming a mechanic herself, she stated, "Why pay John Doe to fix my car when I can?"

Even though the first weeks of auto mechanics was all taught in the classroom, it all paid off in the second semester when the students were then let go in the shop to work on their cars.

Auto mechanics was not the only course available in Industrial Arts. Others were electricity, metals, woods and mechanical drawing.

In order to make anything in Industrial Arts, a student had to have the knowledge of the tools he or she was using. Among the tools used by the students were the soldering gun, welders and electric saws.

Industrial Art classes were worth only the normal one-half a credit on school records, but might be worth a career after graduation.

Senior Jeff Jennings shows his expertise on the Jigsaw. This was just one of the many machines available in shop department.

Special Education gives students a chance

Special Education was a vocational program that served students with low academic skills. The emphasis of the program was to teach a student to reach his or her individual level of vocational competence.

The programs that made up Special Education not only dealt with learning disabilities, but also with students that had trouble adapting to the traditional school courses.

The entire work-study program was made up of individual programs, which included SWS (School Within a School), New Horizons, Learning Disabilities, Work Experience, CLUE (Career Laboratories Utilizing Experience) and CBEP (Community Based Education Program). These programs were very successful in training these students.

Bill Green, Mrs. Linda Drucker and Jerry Miller enjoy a party.

Sophomore Norma Allen makes a cake, which is just one elective in Special Education.

English Department meets students needs

What was new in the English Department? Ability grouping? This system of teaching, formerly called "tracking," gained momentum in the department. "This," says the English Department chairperson, Mr. James Tredway, "allows the teachers to better meet the individual needs of students."

Ability grouping, or "tracking," involved the grouping of students into classes on the basis of ability. This allowed classes to progress in a manner such that all students learned what was being taught rather than some learning and others having to review material already known to them.

The barrier to this in the past had been the Board of Directors. According to them, ability grouping discriminated against below-average students by keeping them in a below-average class.

After a long day, Mrs. Sandy Axness sits down to correct her students' work, a task not easily accomplished.

After making himself comfortable at the head of the class, Mr. John Raymond mandates a reading assignment in great American literature.

Mr. Ed Kelly helps senior Luanne Williams with rhetoric.

Mrs. Maxine Langenfeld's class enjoys a lively discussion of issues far beyond the average student's comprehension.

A proud tradition: our Music Department

Being a member of the Music Department is hard work. Practices, rehearsals, performances and trips were just part of the activities for the students.

A few of the events performed by band included playing at all the boy and girl conference home games. Also, throughout the year, they performed in many contests as well as three spring parades. Then they took a long-awaited trip to Nashville, Tenn., April 2 to April 5. The trip included not only band but the Color Guard and Steppers too.

There were several different choirs including Concert Choir, Scarlet Choir and Scarlet Music Company. Electronic Music class and Voice class were also offered.

The choirs also had a busy year. They had four evening concerts as well as three junior high concerts. Also they peformed community programs at places such as the Financial Center. Then, on March 10, the East choir combined with the choirs from Hoyt, Hiatt and Goodrell Junior Highs and put on an East Side Music Festival, which was held at Goodrell Junior High.

Sally Charles, senior, begins a project for her Jewelry class.

Junior Jim Taylor displays his artwork for which he was named Artist of the Week.

Communication: an important part of Art

Three talented art teachers, Mr. Steve Sams (chairperson), Mr. Jerry Swanson and Mrs. Carrie Intihar-Mumma believe that ALL people can benefit from art. Mr. Sams feels that art is a "communications skill" and that if people can be visually more sensitive through their work in art, their whole world will open up.

The many different courses offered caught the attention of students. Those courses included Art Exploration, Art Fundamentals, Drawing, Printmaking, Painting, Commercial Design, Jewelry, Crafts, Pottery, Sculpture and Independent Study.

The staff has proved to be an interesting one. Mr. Sams spends much of his spare time and summers painting. A new teacher here, Mr. Swanson, spends his spare time on home remodeling and decorating. Also a new teacher, Mrs. Intihar is pursuing her master's degree from Drake, in printing.

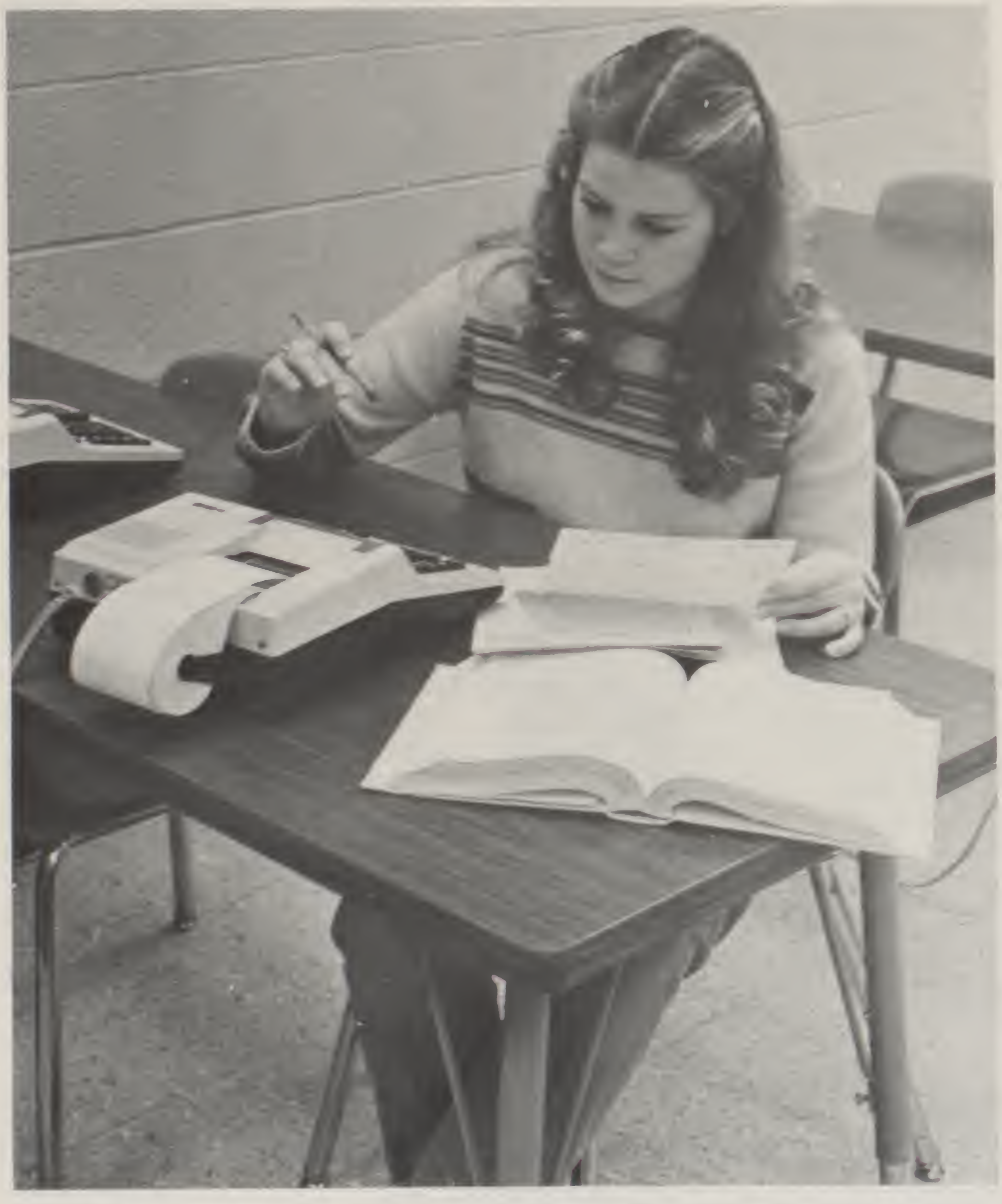
Pleased with her ability to draw is senior Melinda White.

Business Education classes expanded with new equipment

The Business Education classes began their year with the addition of a new IBM executive typewriter and an Apple II computer.

The computer classes were taught by Mr. Merlin Mauk. The two courses he used the Apple II in were Beginning Basic Computer and Advanced Basic Computer. The IBM executive typewriter is an advanced word-processing machine that can run back copy, from its memory, at 180 words a minute. The executive was used by advanced typing classes, which included Clerical Practice, Office Education and Secretarial Practice.

Business Education included 32 different courses that were taught by 10 different teachers. Each course taught in the Business Education Department was an elective, which meant that each student had the opportunity to take a course in which he or she was interested.



Senior Sally Charles has that look of confidence as she checks out her figures on a calculator, just to make sure.

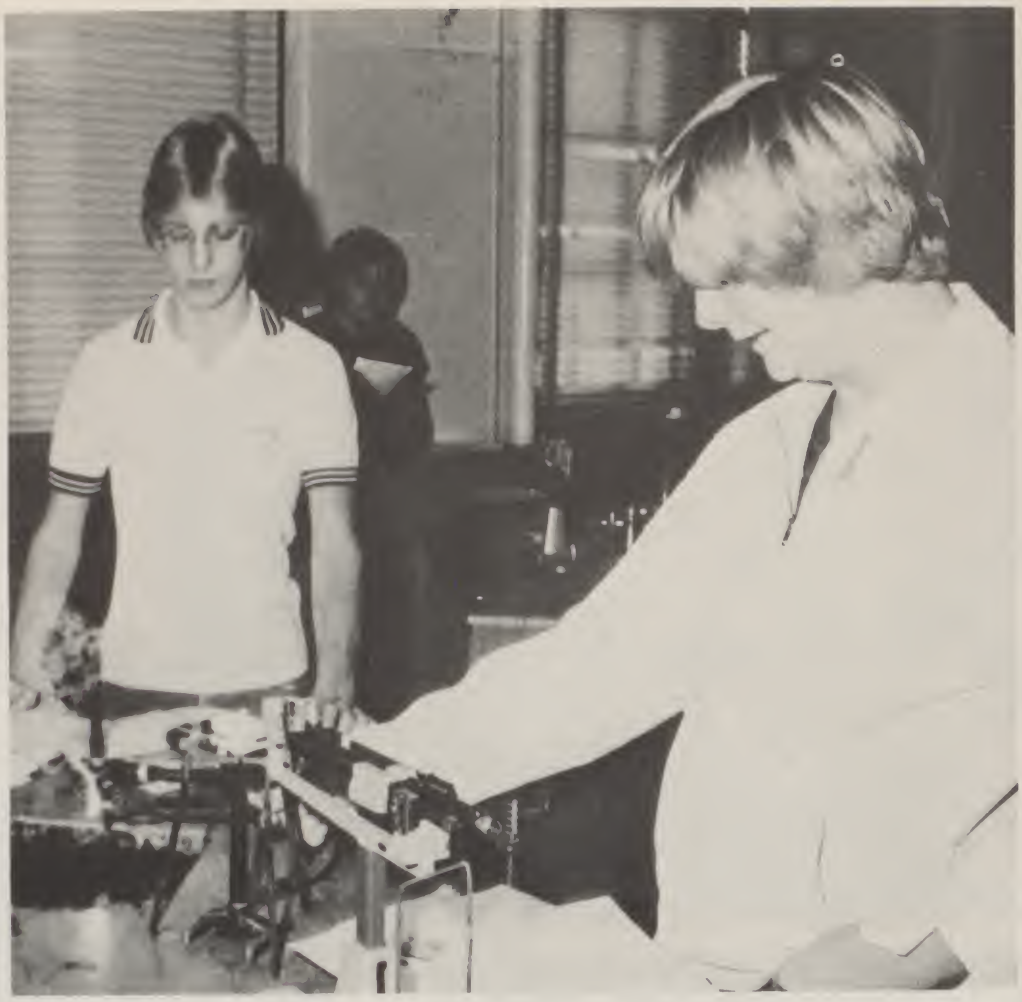
Concentrating hard on his work, junior Mark Smith punches out his information on the new Apple II computer.

Miss Mary Ann Ochs demonstrates the correct way to use carbon copy to her typing class.

Career Ed is The Answer

Taking dictation from the Electronic Futures Incorporated Shorthand Lab, senior Denise Waychoff takes a break to make a correction.

Juniors Bill Kearbey and Mike Zeigler work on a chemistry assignment.



Sophomores DeLora Jones and Patty Joelson work in a lab in Biology.

Science classes offer many opportunities

The Science Department offered many subjects this year. The classes available were Earth Science, Biology, Ecology, Physics and Chemistry. A student must pass one of these classes in order to graduate.

Mr. Paul Sloan, Science Department chairperson, said it would be wise for students to take as much science as possible.

Most of the classes consisted of some type of book work, and usually, considerable lab work.

Sophomores Jill Waychoff and Beth Mahaffey imitate a flounder in science class.

Basic skills stressed in Math Department

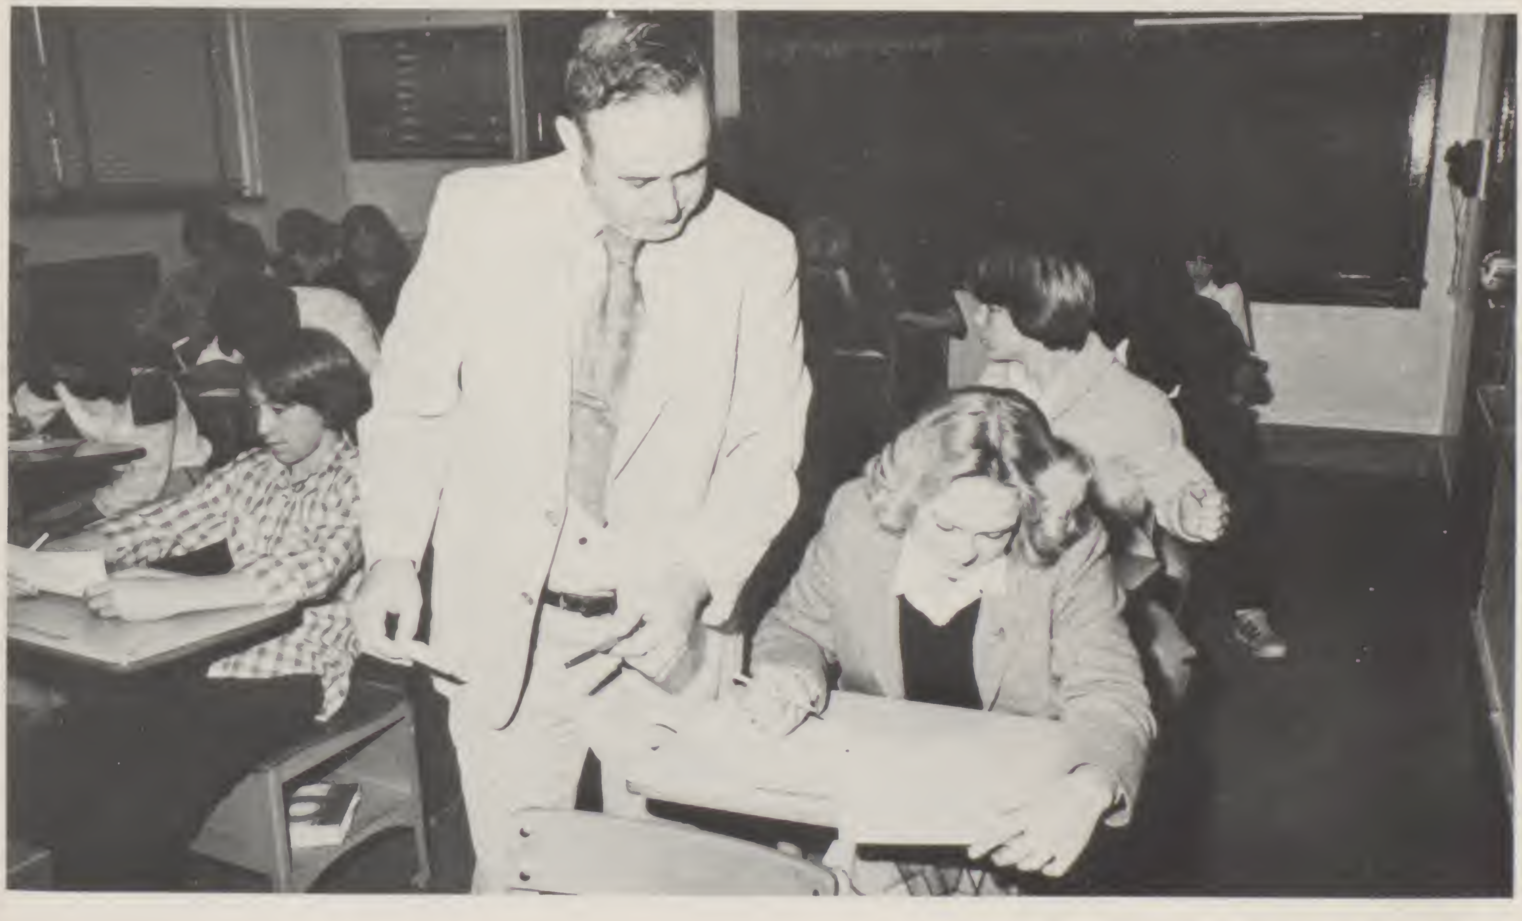
Each freshman student enrolled in a math class was tested on the basic mathematics skills. Students who did not achieve the norm established for their grade level were given special help on their basic skills by their math teachers. Those students were retested at the end of the semester to show the improvements they made.

Enrollment in the math classes stayed nearly the same as the previous year's enrollment. About one-half of the students in school took a math subject.

The Math Department chairperson, Mrs. Vernice Kingsbury, said, though, that more students should take math because it is a needed skill.

Sophomores Doreen Terrell and Val Little work to complete a math assignment.

Mr. Alfred Willis helps junior Teg Welsher with her Geometry.



AFJROTC students have many benefits

The Air Force Junior Reserve Officer Training Corp program proved to be an exciting and worthwhile program, and the increase in enrollment supported this fact. In 1979-80 there was a total enrollment of 35 students; in 1980-81, the enrollment more than doubled, to 74 students.

Sergeant Lowell Anderson returned for another year and Major Jerry Meek came for his first year.

A special event of the year was a flight to Wichita, Kansas; and once a week, a member of the AFJROTC was chosen for "special recognition."

The AFJROTC members had a hair code and were required to wear their uniforms once a week. They also wore their uniforms to special functions which were a lot of fun. They were paid for their services as doormen, etc.

The class taught aerospace science and leadership. Students were officers and the students chose who should be promoted.

Students who took AFJROTC received a PE credit and an elective credit. Students were graded on their performance.

Students who took all three years of AFJROTC were able to enter the military or college with a much better entry-level rank.

Junior Norma Ochoa respectfully holds the U.S. flag.

Mr. Jack Gray teaches Driver Education students how to drive correctly.

Driver Ed. students learn in three ways

PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Driver Education was an elective that students had to take if they wanted their licenses before the age of 18.

The course was only offered for the first semester and was worth one-fourth of a credit. There were three basic parts to the class. There was "class," where students watched many films, attended lectures, worked out of a book and took tests.

Students had a chance to learn through driving a car and also through simulation, where students watched a film and pretended they were the driver. The simulator puts students, as nearly as possible, into a real-life driving situation.

Mr. Stan Thompson, Social Science teacher, electronically checks students' tests.

Mr. Don Murphy, Social Science teacher, shows his class a film.

Mock election gives students chance to vote

A major highlight of the year was the "mock" election in November. Every student had the opportunity to vote through his Social Science class. Mr. Jim Bush, chairperson of the Social Science Department, said, "The mock election was very important because there were students voting who were already 18."

The results from the mock election were interesting. Carter and Mondale defeated Reagan and Bush, with Anderson and Lucy coming in third. In the senatorial race Culver defeated Grassley. Smith defeated Young for U.S. Representative. The Equal Rights Amendment was voted down.

Library holds different kinds of resources

Many helpful communication aids were available in the library. These aids included vertical files, periodicals, encyclopedias, reference books and, of course, books on many other varied subjects.

The librarians began the year with 19,283 books; 300 of them were new this year. The library subscribed to 115 magazines and eight different kinds of newspapers. A budget of $10,050 helped to purchase all of the above, along with the audio-visual material.

Librarians opened the library every day at 7:30 a.m.

Librarian June Kalsem helps senior Glynnis Wolver check out books for overnight use.

Different methods to learn foreign languages

Oral reading, singing songs and watching filmstrips were the teaching methods that the foreign language teachers used to help students learn foreign languages.

Each class had its own way of learning the different cultures of foreign countries.

The French class had a crepe day and made French Christmas cards.

The Spanish class made pinatas and took a field trip to a Mexican restaurant.

The German class had a Christmas party and played German games.

Each class enjoyed the different techniques that were used for learning cultures and languages.

Freshmen Shelly Swim, Dana Boone and Karla Erickson show the fine detail of making a pinata.

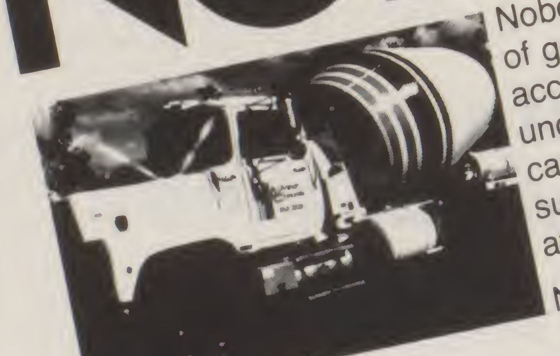
NOBODY!

Nobody else in this area can do a better job of getting your concrete to you on time and according to specifications. And thanks to our underground aggregate storage system, it can be freezing in winter or steaming in summer, but we'll get your concrete to you at the perfect temperature!

Nobody makes concrete better than McAninch!



There is a Difference!

All the practicing was worth it when you remember what you've done,
By hearing the contest announcer say Color Guard your number one.

The excitement , the tears, and the special friends that we met,
Are all parts of Color Guard
that we'll never forget.

The goals we accomplished we worked for very hard,
But now it's time to say
Goodbye from the Senior Color Guard.

Year proves Scarlet Fever still unbeatable

The memories started coming back as you arranged your ride for the first day of school. They started building stronger, as you walked up the front steps and opened your first door. There you met your friends in the hall, all decked out in their new clothes, with suntans left over from the summer months.

For many, school had just begun, but the football team got a head start on their Scarlet fever with summer practices. You probably didn't think about this on your way to a football game listening to "Another One Bites the Dust" on the radio.

At the football game, Scarlet fever started with the football team on the field. The Cheerleaders spread their pride as you felt Scarlet fever trickle through the stands.

Homecoming brought you a welcome break from a busy schedule . . . Scarlet fever in full gear.

The weather got colder, but Scarlet fever was still hot as you went to your first basketball game. Whether going early to see the girls or sticking around to watch the guys, you were rarely disappointed.

There wasn't any letdown after the basketball season. Your excitement for the last two dances of the year, the Spinster Spree and the Junior-Senior Prom, marked the perfect end of a perfect year.

Whether you were a senior taking your Scarlet fever with you, or an underclassman privileged enough to carry it on, you looked back at the school year and thought of the exciting times. One thing was for sure. We had it . . . Scarlet fever!
